Zambezi adopts DREAMS for girls, young women

Confidante Reporter

THE Zambezi region has fully implemented the DREAMS program which is aimed at empowering adolescent girls and young women especially in the fight against HIV/AIDS.

The is the third Namibian region to implement the program has seen the enrolment of 1 300 adolescent girls consisting of 850 girls aged 9-14, 330 aged 15-19, and 125 aged 20-24 years old since July.

DREAMS is an ambitious partnership between the governments of Namibia and the United States to reduce HIV infections among adolescent girls and young women by helping them develop into Determined, Resilient, Empowered, Aids-free, Mentored, and Safe (DREAMS) women.

According to the Namibia Population-Based HIV Impact Assessment (NAMPHIA) released in July, the Zambezi region has the highest prevalence of HIV among adults aged 15-64 years. Despite this, the region is said to be doing well to maintain the viral load suppression of people on treatment.

"This means a person diagnosed with HIV in the Zambezi Region is quickly put on treatment and continues to take his or her medication. This is an important achievement for the region because once the
